"MESS CALL is the signature Bugle Call to tell all Officers to head for the Mess (or the Mess Tent, if the event is out field) during the days when communication was either by Bugle Call or Semaphore Flags. Appropriately, our newsletter by way of its contents is to 'invite' all of you to the Mess and aim to invoke a sense of association for the Mess. The Editorial Team seeks to establish MESS Call as a bridge that connects all of us together in the SPOM family".

KARAOKE KRAZE KONTEST 2012

ASP Rane Chua
SPOM Social Sub-Committee

On 31st August 2012, 19 Senior Officers from various units gathered at the newly renovated SPOM Karaoke Lounge for the inaugural "Karaoke Kraze Kontest 2012". They came armed with their zealous supporters and a repertoire of English and Mandarin hits from various genres.

Organised by the SPOM Social Sub-Committee, the contestants were judged based on showmanship and vocal qualities. They also had to perform before the camera, besides the judges and audience! Videos of their performances were then uploaded on the SPOM Facebook page.

The panel of judges comprised of Mr Sulaiman (an award-winning song writer), Mr Noor Asrin (Chief Musician in the SPF Band) and Mr Lau Khee Keong (Choir Master of SPF Choir and Bandmaster of the SPF Band) from the Singapore Police Force Band. The judges shared their valuable tips and advice when they became our very own "Simon Cowells" for the night.

The audience was well-entertained as the contestants gamely displayed their vocal skills and tried to outperform one another. It was an impressive contest and a close fight amongst the contestants, so the judges definitely had a challenging time awarding their points. The finalists were also being determined by SPOM members as 20% of the contestants' overall scores were based on the number of 'Likes' the contestants received for their recorded performance on the SPOM Facebook page.

Upon the final tallying of scores, the Social Sub-Committee would like to congratulate the following five finalists:

- Madeline Low (CID)
- Lee Pei Ling (CID)
- Chan Jan Ho (D Div)
- Lai Ser Tun (F Div)
- William Siew (Senior Officer Trainee)

If you have not seen the contestants in action, you can still view their performances on SPOM's Facebook page. You can watch the finalists performing live at the finals during the SPOM Annual Dinner 2013!

ComChest Heartstring Walk 2012

Insp Joseph Yoong &
Insp Yow Kien Seng
SPOM Sports Sub-Committee

The Senior Police Officer cohort was once again proud to participate in the ComChest Heartstrings Walk 2012 @ Marina Bay.

With the iconic Marina Bay waterfront as the panoramic backdrop, the walk for charity was indeed fun and meaningful. Held on 26th August 2012, the event was graced by Guest-Of-Honour Mr Teo Chee Hean, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for Home Affairs.

Even before dawn, members of the Senior Officer corps had gathered at the start point, eager to do their part in celebrating the caring and giving spirit of the Singapore community. The first rays of dawn soon illuminated the waterfront, heralding the commencement of the walk. At the end of walkathon, the participants enjoyed the fun-filled carnival, live entertainment and were even treated to massages to soothe their tired muscles. It was truly a rewarding experience for the participants as they had made a difference in the lives of over 300,000 people under the care of Community Chest.

Vertical Marathon @ Marina Bay Sands

Other than the walkathon, four SPOM members also participated in the vertical marathon for this meaningful cause. ASP Richard Chung, INSP Liow Yong Hwee, INSP Yow Kien Seng and NSI Oo Wa Thann teamed up to conquer 57 floors of the gravity-defying Sands SkyPark. The team achieved 4th position, surpassing SPOM's 7th position in the ComChest Vertical Marathon 2011. Well done, guys!

Yellow Ribbon Prison Run 2012

The Road to Acceptance

Insp Joseph Yoong &
Insp Yow Kien Seng
SPOM Sports Sub-Committee

On 16th September 2012, SPOM members gathered eagerly at the start point of picturesque Changi Village. Amidst the cheerful greetings and friendly jibes of how prepared (or unprepared) each officer was for the challenge ahead, Senior Officers who represented SPOM were ready to do their part in creating awareness for the Yellow Ribbon Project. The race was led by none other than Commissioner of Police, Mr Ng Joo Hee and Deputy Commissioner of Police, Mr T. Raja Kumar.

The 10-km route took runners through one of the most beautiful routes in the east. Runners will pass through lush greenery and rolling hills, historic sites like the Johore Battery and the old Changi Prison wall and culminating at the new generation Changi Prison Complex.

Into its 4th year, the run blends endurance, challenges and community involvement – the same factors that make up the reintegration journey of ex-offenders. This year's theme, The Road to Acceptance, is about giving ex-offenders a second chance to have a fresh start, conveying the message that what matters most is not about the fall, but how to pick oneself up after the fall.

As the kilometres rolled by, the runners were spurred on by fellow runners around them and the cheerleaders who lined the race route. Though the run was long and at times arduous, everyone persevered. Soon, the end point was in sight and all were cheered on by the thought of having contributed to the success of the project and in having helped to fly the SPOM flag high.

The Dining-In Culture

Insp Daniel Chong Kwang Fei
SPOM Social Sub-Committee

Tradition - The history and significance of Dining-ins

When the Senior Police Officers' Mess was inaugurated in the 1930s, it was first known as the Gazetted Officers Mess of the Straits Settlements. Derived from a rich heritage of British military tradition, SPOM was originally the living quarters for unmarried British gazetted officers who practically ate all their meals at the Mess. As the years went by, the notion of incorporating activities such as formal events, hosting of guests and having meals together within the Mess emerged.

Early 'Gazetted Officers'

The Straits Settlements Police Force in Singapore was dissolved following the 2nd War World and the once exclusionary Gazetted Officers' Mess of the Straits Settlements took on the new name of the Senior Police Officers' Mess (SPOM). The British tradition of the mess night or dining-in continued even when more locals became Senior Officers. One of the key traditions was the customary invitation of guests for Dining-In, where both guests and officers were dressed formally.

Heritage - SPOM's Dining-Ins

SPOM quickly became an ideal place to host important events amongst local leaders and foreign dignitaries. Dining-Ins formed a significant feature of such occasions. Officers who were dressed in their smartest uniforms and armed with robust etiquette, sat together to enjoy the sumptuous meal laid before them. This formed a platform for communication and socialising among the officers and enhanced the friendship between leaders.

1st President Yusof Ishak's Dining-In, 1966

Annual Senior Officers' Dining-In, 1967

SPOM's Dining-ins has transcended time and through an infusion of British traditionalism and modernity, the scope of activities for dining-ins has broadened. Shifting from a rather patriarchal British standpoint, where only male senior officers used to be the perpetual hosts for Dining-Ins; a clear juxtapose can be seen today, as female senior officers are entitled to the accolade of hosting guests as well. The dynamics of Dining-Ins thus shed light of the increasingly even-levelled playing field shared between both genders. Aside from this, Dining-Ins had over the years been assimilated with the 'dinner and dance'.

Culture - Why SPOM is adopting the Dining-In concept for D&D 2013?

To celebrate the unique tradition and culture of Dining-Ins, SPOM will adopt the dining-in concept for the Annual Dinner 2013. Members are strongly encouraged to bring their spouses along to this significant and joyous event. Like what Commissioner Colonel R.E. Fougler (1946) said: "Your Mess, like Your Home." SPOM D&D 2013 champions this assertion.

WINE APPRECIATION WORKSHOP

Insp Erik Fan
SPOM F&B Sub-Committee

Do you love your glass of wine and wish to learn the art of wine tasting? That was what some thirty SPOM wine enthusiasts did together on 20th July 2012 when they attended the Wine Appreciation Workshop conducted by Mr Brad Ng, a connoisseur of wine from Beautiful Wine Pte Ltd.

Just like appreciating a precious gem in the making, the key to recognising a premium wine lies with several critical elements during its making. An understanding of the variety of grapes used, the methodology used to culture the wine, the age of the wine and the alcohol level will enable one to differentiate the premium from the entry level wines.

All these factors affect the smell and taste of the wine and in turn trigger our senses to respond to each wine differently. Understanding the various experiences that can be achieved with different wines was initially a mystery to most participants. Eventually, this became crystal clear and every participant became one step closer to becoming a connoisseur themselves.

Mr Brad had introduced three bottles of red wine from Hentley Farm. The Beauty Shiraz 2006 brings out the fullness of ripe fruit flavours and spicy overtones. The Cub Shiraz 2009 brings out rich, ripe flavours, with a blanket of sweet spicy oak and superfine tannins enveloping blackberry, blueberry and plum fruits. Lastly, the Lou Miranda Leone Shiraz 2008 brings out deep crimson red with purple highlights.

Two bottles of white wine, namely Spreitzer Riesling Trocken 2010 and Spreitzer Oestricher Lenchen Riesling Erstes Gewacha 2009, with a rating of 88 and 91 points respectively, were also appreciated by the members at the workshop. In addition to the wine provided by Mr Brad, participants were privileged to taste the exclusive SPOM house wines.

The wine appreciation workshop provided an avenue for members to forge and renew bonds by learning the art of wine tasting together. Participants left with fond memories, just like the lingering bittersweet taste of a delicate wine. It will certainly not be the last of the meeting for SPOM's wine lovers!

LUNCH WITH RETIRED SENIOR POLICE OFFICERS

ASP Choo Hong Xian
SPOM Heritage Sub-Committee

On 27th September 2012, SPOM Heritage Sub-Committee organised a lunch for retired senior police officers at SPOM. The lunch was hosted by Deputy Commissioner (Policy) and the attendees included Mr Karthigesu Thamby Rajah, Mr Woon Sian Hai, Mr Lim Soo Gee, Mr Simon Cornelius, Mr Tan Ngo Chew, Mr Seng Kuang Meng, Mr Edwin Oliver Thompson and Mr Ponnaya Ganesan.

It was a memorable afternoon where old friends gathered to catch up with one another. For younger officers like ASP Dennis Lim who is a member of the SPOM Heritage Committee, it was an enriching experience to listen to the retired officers as they shared nuggets of wisdom or their experience with the Force.

Mr P. Ganesan shared with ASP Dennis Lim that good officers are able, dedicated and disciplined, besides having integrity and vitality. Mr Ganesan joined the force in 1958 and had gone through a wide range of postings, such as with the GSB in CID and Head Investigation with 'F' Division. He retired in August 1990 where his last posting was Head Administration (Traffic Police). His advice certainly remains relevant today.
